

David L. Anderson, Jr.
Chicago State University
Student Trustee

Chicago State University provided the platform for David to succeed. David is studying Finance and Economics with a cumulative 3.5 GPA. David is currently Chicago State's student board of trustee member and the Illinois Board of Higher Education's non-traditional board member. He has successfully completed internships at Goldman Sachs and J.P. Morgan, receiving a full time offer. Lastly, David has been invited to study at Harvard University, and is also in discussions with Yale, Dartmouth and New York University for possible graduate studies. David says, "Chicago State gives many non-traditional students a second chance to soar when life has clipped their wings." Chicago State gives us the ability to dream again, and believe in the "American Dream" again.
