Basic Plan

I. Introduction
Chicago State University (CSU) is committed to the safety and security of its students, faculty, staff, and visitors. This commitment, as enumerated herein, specifically addresses the university's position on the prevention, reduction, and response to violence. In implementing this commitment, the university is guided by the policies, regulations, and statutes listed below. CSU does not tolerate acts or threats of violence committed by or against students, faculty, staff, visitors, or other third parties on university owned, controlled or leased properties. Effective management strategies will be employed to prevent campus violence, to reduce the effects of violence on victims, and to impose consequences upon those who threaten or perpetrate violence. University students, faculty, staff, visitors or other third parties are prohibited from carrying, maintaining or storing a firearm or weapon in any university facility, even if the owner has a valid permit, if it is not required by the individual’s job, or in accordance with the relevant university policies and state statutes. Any person who is reported or discovered to possess a firearm(s) or weapon(s) on university property will be subject to disciplinary action, arrest and prosecution.

C. Prohibited Conduct and Sanctions

According to the World Health Organization Report on Violence and Health (WHO, 2002) violence is defined as "the intentional use of physical force or power, threatened or actual, against oneself, another person, or against a group or community, that either results in or has a high likelihood of resulting in injury, death, psychological harm, maldevelopment, or deprivation." The World Health Organization Report on Violence and Health also presents a typology of violence that distinguishes four modes in which violence may be inflicted: physical; sexual; psychological attack; and deprivation. It further divides the general definition of violence into three sub-types according to the victim-perpetrator relationship.

1. Self-directed violence refers to violence in which the perpetrator and the victim are the same individual and is subdivided into self-abuse and suicide.

2. Interpersonal violence refers to violence between individuals, and is subdivided into family and intimate partner violence and community violence. The former category includes child maltreatment; intimate partner violence; and elder abuse, while the latter is broken down into acquaintance and stranger violence and includes youth violence; assault by strangers; violence related to property crimes; and violence in workplaces and other institutions.

3. Collective violence refers to violence committed by larger groups of individuals and can be subdivided into social, political and economic violence.

4. Hence, prohibited conduct at CSU includes, but is not limited to:
   a. Physical injury or threat of physical injury to self or others;
   b. Attacks on faculty or staff;
   c. Verbal or physical behavior that creates reasonable fear of a person receiving an injury;
   d. Verbal or physical behavior that subjects an individual(s) to significant emotional distress;
   e. Hate crimes, homophobic harassment/intimidation and/or threatening or violent behavior (actual or perceived) based on race, ethnicity, religion, gender, sexual orientation, or other protected status;
   f. Defacing or damaging property or threatening to do so;
   g. Sexual assault, stalking, dating or domestic violence or sexual harassment;
   h. Hazing;
   i. Brandishing a weapon or firearm;
   j. Arson, and,
   k. Retaliating against any individual who, in good faith, reports a violation of these guidelines.

Verbal behavior refers to use of any method of communication; including e-mail, comments posted on websites, or other paper or electronic media. Any violation of these guidelines will be considered unacceptable conduct and subject the individual(s) to disciplinary actions under the appropriate university policies, up to and including dismissal, arrest and prosecution, and/or civil penalties under Illinois law.

D. Responsibilities

1. The Chief of Police will coordinate the CSU EMERGENCY OPERATIONS PLAN and will advise departments on the development of unit safety plans, including emergency response. The CSU Police Department will investigate threats or incidents of violence and in case of a violent incident(s) on campus, the CSU Police Department will coordinate all university response action. Only CSU Police or other law enforcement personnel should attempt to apprehend an alleged offender. IV. Emergency Information

A. Emergency Preparation
Responding to unexpected emergencies is both an individual and organizational responsibility. Each member of the community has a role in emergency preparation and response. Closing and locking doors and windows and questioning strangers are examples of some simple steps everyone can take. Being alert creates a culture that promotes safety, openness and accessibility of the campus. Having all members of the university community alert to their surroundings will have the most impact on keeping our community safe, secure, and ready to respond. Individuals can help by observing their surroundings, asking about suspicious or questionable behavior, and calling for help when safety is an issue.

1. Campus Emergency Operations Plan
   There are many different types of emergencies that can occur without warning. The Campus EMERGENCY OPERATIONS PLAN provides important information about personal safety and how to respond during different types of emergencies. All members of the university community are expected to take personal responsibility for knowing these procedures.

2. Campus Communication Plan
   The CSU University Relations and Police Department work in coordination to publish the appropriate emergency and/or emergency notification as dictated by circumstance. These notifications may include the following methods:
   a. Urgent messages on the CSU Homepage website: http://www.CSU.edu/homeindex/emergency_preparedness.shtml
   b. Urgent e-mail messages (sent to all CSU e-mail accounts).
   c. E-mail Message System (sent to all “Rave” subscribers).
   d. Public address system

V. Campus Violence Prevention Strategies

The American College Health Association Campus Violence White Paper (2005) recommends a public health approach whereby administrators, faculty, staff and students work in concert with the local community to change those campus and community policies, practices, infrastructure and culture which promote violence and tolerance for it. CSU is committed to the development of effective, evidence based preventive measures. This commitment includes a campus violence prevention plan, threat assessment, action teams, and security planning for at risk individuals. Pre-employment screening, dormitory screening and programs to warn students about criminal activity and to generally increase campus awareness are also part of this commitment. In addition, CSU provides a drugs/alcohol and smoke free living environment in its dormitory and the campus practices zero tolerance with respect to drugs and alcohol.
