Retention

Strategies for increasing retention rates for all students:

• Retention at the university must be seen as an university-wide initiative with the understanding that the success and retention of the student population requires the collaboration and partnerships across the university.

• The intention of the Division of Enrollment Management is to focus on an outcome-based retention and assessment strategy. Improved retention is an outcome of improved practices that address the quality of the academic experience, student life issues, and student support. We expect to study the impact of programs, services, and business practices on student life with a view to understanding what works and what needs improvement.
NACADA (The National Association of Academic Advisors) recommends an advisor caseload of 250 students.

FYE average of each advisor
- n=125 (all freshmen)
- n=50 (freshmen in cohort)

50 students per advisor
NACADA recommends a caseload of 125 students or less per advisor for at-risk student populations
Retention Model for Freshmen—FYE practices an Intrusive Advising model which is a combination of both developmental advising (relationship to a student's total needs), and prescriptive advising (expertise, awareness of student needs, structured programs). Intrusive advising is a direct response to an identified academic crisis with a specific program of action. Advisors do not wait for the students to come to them; they seek out the students. Individualized retention strategies for each student are based on this model.

- Students meet with advisors five times per semester.
- Students complete the College Student Inventory (CSI) by Noel-Levitz.
- Students are made appropriate referrals.
- Advisors do periodic checks with instructors in addition to the academic warning period. The goal is to show the students that they have a support system and to attempt to keep the students from falling off track.

R.I.S.E. Academy (Retention Initiative for Student Engagement)

R.I.S.E. Academy is an academic enrichment program designed to help students become academically successful in their first year of college. Through participation in this intensive study skills program, students gain both the study skill set and confidence needed to successfully complete their first year. Students work with staff from the Office of Academic Support, the Counseling Center, and the Learning Assistance Center who facilitate the program and are trained in the assessment and teaching of cognitive and non-cognitive skills.

Transfer Students—Currently there is no office or staff member designated to coordinate the transition of transfer students into the university.

Currently transfer students are advised by their major of choice. This would not change; however, the transfer advisor would do the following and other tasks associated with transfer students:

- Act as liaison between transfer students and academic department
- Help the students understand university policies and procedures
- Create programming designed to help students transition into the university
- Help students transition from their first year to their second
