

Dr. Concetta A. Williams '99/04 Assistant Professor of English

Bachelor of Arts, Psychology
Master of Arts, English

I chose Chicago State University after visiting the campus and seeing a student body that reflects my values, culture, and has allowed me the comfort and resources to express myself genuinely through education. Everyone here is incredibly inspiring in their approach to unapologetically develop, embrace, and create their identities.

The educational and extracurricular experiences I received at Chicago State University have been an absolute cornerstone in my academic career. From day one, Chicago State University has been a conduit for social progress for minorities within higher education. My CSU connections have become long-lasting and dependable relationships that reinforce the school's commitment to community and support.

"There are so many wonderful resources here at Chicago State University and I encourage all students to make full use of all means of support."

Whenever I look back on my days at Chicago State University, I think about all the time-honored traditions that coincide with my time in Residential and Greek Life. It is the traditions, community, and associations you form that makes Chicago State University genuinely stand apart from other schools in higher education.